Cancer Nurses Society of Australia

Australian Journal of Cancer Nursing

The Australian Journal of Cancer Nursing (AJCN) is a refereed biannual publication that aims to provide educational material to members and other interested bodies and acts as a forum where debate and exchange of views can take place.

The AJCN is essential reading for nurses who are delivering services in the cancer field and is oriented towards clinical, education and management nurses with an interest in cancer care. In the AJCN, the relationships between cancer nursing, the nursing profession generally and the cancer care community are explored.

Manuscripts that have a sound scientific, theoretical or philosophical base will be considered for publication. The AJCN welcomes submissions on contemporary professional, policy or practice topics or issues of interest to cancer nurses. This can include research papers, case studies, reports, recommendations for practice or letters to the editor.

The AJCN is listed with Cumulated Index of Nursing & Allied Health Literature (CINAHL) and the Australian Government Department of Education Science and Technology (DEST) databases.

Author guidelines

Format

Three copies of the manuscript should be submitted in hard copy. The final version of the paper should be submitted on disk (save as Microsoft Word or Rich Text File).

Guidelines

- The text of the paper should be typed double spaced in 12 point font.
- Include a title at the top of the paper.
- Include author/s name/s, position in the organisation, name of the organisation or institution below the title.
- Include an abstract of no more than 150 words below the author information.
- Use headings and subheadings where appropriate.
- Graphics can include photographs, slides, and drawings and may be in black and white or colour. They must be of good quality and should be labelled with an appropriate caption.
- Include any graphs or tables in the paper at the point in the text where you wish them to appear.
- Label each table consecutively at the top of the table, giving table number and title.
- Reference should be made to each table at the appropriate point in the text.

Permission to publish

Authors must have permission to publish any material obtained from another source, or which has been/will be published elsewhere.

References

References should be cited within the text as superscript numbers and listed at the end of the text in numerical order. A reference cited more than once can be designated by the same superscript number. The reference list at the end of the text should include:

- For journals, the surname/s and initials of the author/s, title of the article, journal name, year of publication, volume and edition numbers and page numbers.
- For books, the surname/s and initials of the author/s, title, edition number, publisher, place of publication, year of publication and relevant page numbers.
